Board of Health Notice.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH,
HONOLULU, Oct. 14, 1889.

The Board of Health, desiring to avoid unnecessary alarm, owing to the existence of measles in the community and the impossibility of quarantining cases of the disease in their various scattered localities, publishes the following directions and suggestions for the guidance of families in which the disease may appear.

From the reports of the physicians it appears that there have been over one hundred cases in Honolulu; but the cases treated are very light, and by carefully observing the directions herewith given, no danger is to be anticipated.

DIRECTIONS.

1. All persons affected with measles should be confined to the house, and while feverish, especially if children, had better remain in bed.

2. As to food, this should be simple and nutritious, such as poi, bread, milk, water cooked rice, and plain soups. Water of ordinary temperature may be partaken of freely, which is the best drink.

3. Avoid chilling the body by exposure to draughts and currents of air; but do not stifle the patient in an unventilated room nor overheat him with too much clothing.

4. To preserve cleanliness and comfort, a warm sponge bath may be used once a day which should be taken in the house and should always be followed by the careful use of the towel and recovering the body with dry clothing. But bathing in cold water and bathing in the open air, is to be positively abstained from.

5. As a rule no medicine is needed and none had better be taken, unless prescribed by a physician.

6. In order to limit the spread of this disease which is infectious and contagious, children who have not had the disease should be excluded from the room occupied by the sick person and, if possible, nor should they be handled by those who have just come from the presence of the sick.

The soiled clothing and bed-clothes of the sick one should be plunged into (boiling) hot water before washing.

7. No child should be allowed to return to school until several days after the skin has regained its normal appearance, the cough has ceased and his strength and appetite are thoroughly restored.

8. If cough or a bowel complaint persist do not fail to seek the advice of a physician at once.

N. B. EMERSON,

President of the Board of Health.

Hawaiian Gazette

TEN - PAGE EDITION.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1889.

The Privy Council of State, at its session on Saturday last, passed a resolution; recommending His Majesty to commute the sentence of Albert Loomens, who was convicted of treason, from hanging to one year's imprisonment, provided he leaves the country never to return, and should he return, the death penalty to be revived and executed.

The council also authorized the Minister of Finance to pay certain claims presented by the Fire Department on account of the insurrection July 30th, and for repairs on the Opera House, not to exceed $2,700.

An eastern exchange remarks regarding the address of Mr. Blaine at the opening of the Pan-American Congress published in another column, that it "has given him a new hold upon the appreciation of his countrymen. His sentences were full of dignified welcome, of lofty purpose and of sound advice. His eloquence was equal to the best efforts of his earlier years. His suggestions were in keeping with his official station as Secretary of State advising the assembled delegates to act in furtherance of the political and commercial interests of the Western Hemisphere, yet dropping no hint of hostility against the interests or institutions of the old world. It was the ripe expression of a broad statesman rising to the importance of the occasion."

MIS-STATEMENTS CORRECTED.

Our attention has been called to an article in the San Francisco Post of Oct. 7th relative to these islands, in which a number of assertions are made, which are either wholly unfounded, or greatly exaggerated. Among other mis-statements is this: "The public debt of the islands is now about $2,000,000, at six per cent. The loan was negotiated at the end of 1887 in England," etc. The truth is,—the amount negotiated in England is $980,000, and no more. The balance of the public debt is held by Hawaiians.

Again, referring to Mr. Dillingham's Oahu railway, it says, "This railway scheme is backed by English capital." We are authorized by the officers of the company to say that not one dollar of the railroad bonds is held in England, but the entire amount—some $300,000, more or less—is held by Hawaiians, who are prepared to advance double the amount whenever called for.

Again, we quote, "The Honolulu Tramway or Street Railroad Co. is also owned in England." Originally this was the case, but at present about one-third of the stock is owned here, and eventually a majority of it will be.

Again: "A sugar plantation company has just been organized in London with a capital of $2,000,000 to operate in Kauai, one of the Hawaiian islands. Of this amount about $500,000 will be subscribed in the islands." The Makaweli plantation is referred to here. Although this bold enterprise, which requires an expenditure of half a million to provide the water supply, was originated in Scotland, through the efforts of Mirreles, Watson & Co., a majority of the stock is owned in Hawaii, and a minority of it in Scotland or England, a very different showing from that made by the extract.

The Post continues: "Practically in the above three enterprises and the public debt of $2,000,000, the Hawaiian Islands have given England, through its money lenders, a lien of about $6,000,000 on the public and corporate securities." Instead of $6,000,000 as asserted above, the total indebtedness on account of the public debt and enterprises referred to is less than $2,000,000. This will serve as a specimen of the mis-statements made by San Francisco papers which take the reports of persons who know little or nothing of the facts referred to. Even in the table of sugar plantations published yesterday, a considerable portion of the account credited to British subjects, really should be credited to Hawaiians, as some British born planters have taken the oath of allegiance here, and are virtually Hawaiian citizens. But even if they had not, they are while here practically Hawaiians, and the product of their labor and capital is Hawaiian, as much as the product of Britons residing in San Francisco is American.

THE CABINET'S REPLY.

It is with pleasure that we present this morning the reply of the Cabinet to the citizens' petition to the Government regarding the Chinese, for which we are indebted for the original copy to Robt. Lishman Esq., Chairman of the organization. The reply is a manly, honest statement, which grasps the whole question in all its length and breadth, and presents it in a clearer and more forcible light than any statement that was presented to the citizen's meetings, or has appeared elsewhere.

The ministers meet the question fairly and answer it without equivocation, and after having ascertained beyond a doubt that no relief could be obtained from the present legislature, for reasons stated, they say that the Cabinet are of opinion that it would be useless to again call that body together to consider this subject.

This decision agrees with the opinion expressed by many others, and is unquestionably sound.

After settling this point regarding the legislature, the ministers say that the importance of this question requires a decisive statement of ministerial policy, and declare that the encroachments of Chinese threaten the extinction of Western civilization in these islands, by the substitution of Chinese for Hawaiian and other foreign population. Also that the population of Anglo-Saxon civilization here can only be preserved by retaining an educated population, capable of supporting a representative government. And that self-preservation is a principle universally recognized.

They then present an array of facts and figures to show what is going on in other countries, demonstrating that a crisis is impending in nearly every country on this very question of Chinese population. This portion of their answer is very interesting and instructive and they have brought out an array of facts which are really valuable, and which should be read and preserved for future reference.

The summing up and arguments presented towards the close make the most powerful proof which could be brought forward in favor of some stern legislation on this great question. Their argument on the subject of class legislation and class restriction is a very convincing one, and shows that China herself is the nation that presents the most obstructions to foreigners, and the one which most persistently forbids foreigners exercising rights in her territory.

This document is by far the most powerful plea yet made in favor of legislative restriction of Chinese, and if a legislature can be elected in full sympathy with its tenor, there can be no doubt that some decisive action will be taken on the subject. It concedes all the most urgent demands of those who have suffered the most from the unfair competition of Chinese. And it should receive the unqualified approval and endorsement of every citizen.

A RIGHTEOUS VERDICT.

Our readers will remember that some two years ago, the late Ralph S. Smith was killed by a man named Powell, at his home in Redwood, California. Money was on the side of the culprit, and his friends succeeded in winning over the jury in two trials. On the third trial at Sacramento, Powell was convicted of manslaughter. We copy the report of the sentence from the San Jose Mercury of Oct. 5th.

SACRAMENTO, October 2.—With quivering lips and trembling limbs Lewellyn A. Powell fell back in his chair when he heard his fate announced this morning by Judge Hunt. The murderer of Ralph S. Smith, late editor of the Redwood City Times-Gazette, has been found guilty by a lenient jury of manslaughter after two unsuccessful trials in Redwood City.

The defendant's attorney made a formal motion for a new trial on the briefs heretofore submitted, and Judge Hunt denied the motion.

"Let the defendant stand up," ordered the Court, and Powell then attempted to look indifferent, but soon the heaving of his chest and the trembling hand with which he held his ear to listen better evinced that within his bosom all was not at rest. In fact, while the information charging him with the murder was being read, tears could be seen in his eyes, and this was, perhaps the first demonstration of a conscience that he exhibited since he foully murdered an offensive and respected citizen.

After having attentively listened to the indictment, the Court asked him if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced.

His lawyer then contended that the Court had no jurisdiction, as the homicide was committed in San Mateo county, and the Superior Court there alone had jurisdiction.

Without replying to the objection Judge Hunt pronounced the sentence, which is the extreme penalty.

The ruffian Powell who killed editor Smith of Redwood and twice baffled justice with a divided jury, has not found the Sacramento Courts so easy to delude with his perjured plea of self-defense. A sentence of ten years at hard labor in the State Prison has followed his conviction of manslaughter. It is the extreme penalty for that crime and he may consider himself still fortunate because the verdict was not murder and the sentence capital.

It is an old saying that "justice travels with a leaden heel and strikes with an iron hand." It is especially applicable to the courses of California law. Tardiness is the bane of our Criminal Courts; while it is their virtue that, as a rule, after much delay they make an effort to accomplish justice at last. Such is the history of this homicide of an honest and inoffensive journalist by a brute he exposed to merited contempt. Powell will probably end his worthless life in jail.
